LOCAL CHURCH POLICY POLICY ON DOMESTIC VIOLENCE & SEXUAL HARASSMENT

INTRODUCTION

1.1 Statement of Beliefs

The Seventh-day Adventist Church places great importance upon family life and affirms the dignity and worth of each human being. It decries all forms of physical, spiritual, economic, sexual, emotional and physical abuse, including domestic violence. Such behaviour is intimidating, hostile and/or offensive and undermines our biblical and moral values and destroys the trust between people in our community.

Domestic violence and sexual harassment are not new. There are various accounts of abuse recorded in the Scriptures and in each case we find the family and close relatives of the victim taking action in order to appease the feelings of both themselves and the wounded.

The BUC subscribes to the following statement issued by the General Conference on Family Violence:

“The Bible clearly indicates that the distinguishing mark of Christian believers is the quality of their human relationships in the church and in the family. It is in the spirit of Christ to love and accept, to seek to affirm and build others up, rather than to abuse or tear one another down. There is no room among Christ’s followers for tyrannical control and the abuse of power or authority. Motivated by their love for Christ, His disciples are called to show respect and concern for the welfare of others, to accept males and females as equals, and to acknowledge that every person has a right to respect and dignity. Failure to relate to others in this way violates their personhood and devalues human beings created and redeemed by God.”

The church believes that such abusive behaviour is incompatible with Christianity and any profession of commitment to the Seventh-day Adventist faith. Therefore, it is inconceivable that individuals who, despite guidance and support, continue to choose to practise such behaviour, should be allowed to continue to represent the church in any capacity.

1.2 Why Have a Policy?

The church seeks to create an environment where we can all feel safe from any form of abuse and will take steps to prevent incidents of abuse and harassment from occurring. We are all responsible for providing Christ-like support for those affected.

The British Union Conference (BUC) aims to encourage reconciliation and restoration, including the adoption of positive behaviours, by providing loving purposeful support and direction. However, this is no excuse for not handling the situation or for showing indifference to the consequences of such behaviour. When domestic violence and sexual harassment occur within the church it affects not just the families but also the congregation. Similarly, if it occurs in a Seventh-day Adventist workplace it can affect the wider work environment.

In support of the above, this policy focuses specifically on domestic violence and sexual harassment.

In recognition of the global extent of these problems and the serious long-term effects upon the abused, the abuser, and their families, Seventh-day Adventists must respond to domestic violence and sexual harassment within the home, its places of employment and the church. To remain indifferent and unresponsive is to condone, perpetuate, and potentially extend such behaviour.

1.3 Policy Scope

The BUC is specifically concerned whenever these actions are carried out in Seventh-day Adventist workplaces, churches, during community activities, in the home, or within the families of pastors, ministerial employees, Bible workers, lay leaders and members.

This policy specifically applies to relationships within local churches and among members, officers and volunteers. Disclosures regarding paid employees of the church should be made to the employing organization direct in writing. Further advice on how to complain about an employee can be received by contacting the Executive Secretary of your conference/mission/union/organization. The Executive Secretary/President will then arrange for all such disclosures to be investigated and resolved in accordance with both the church's beliefs and current employment law.

1.4 What is Sexual Harassment?

Sexual harassment involves unwelcome sexual advances, requests for sexual favours or other verbal, written or physical conduct of a sexual nature. Sexual harassment also involves indecent remarks or comments about one's appearance and verbal or physical conduct of a sexual nature affecting an individual's employment status.

Such conduct has the purpose or effect of unreasonably interfering with an individual's performance or creates an intimidating, hostile or offensive environment.

1.5 What is Domestic Violence?

Domestic violence is an assault of any kind committed by one or more persons against another within the home. This can be any incident of threatening behaviour between individuals within the home or between family members. The assault can be verbal, physical, emotional, spiritual, economic, social, or sexual, as well as active or passive neglect.

Whatever form it takes, domestic violence is rarely a one-off incident. More usually it is a pattern of abusive and controlling behaviour through which the abuser(s) seeks power over their victim(s).

2. What to do when a disclosure is made

When an individual approaches you with a disclosure of suffering any type of ill treatment including sexual harassment and domestic violence the following steps should be taken:

2.1 Listen and pray

An offer to listen to and pray with the person should be made. When some individuals complain it may be as a part of their personal relationship with another member whilst others may want support in addressing the situation. In either case the church is opposed to behaviours of this type and encourages all those affected to report any incidents to the recognised authorities and/or to seek professional support. All cases involving minors or vulnerable adults should be referred to the police immediately.

2.2 Support

The person who is confided in should consider that:

Both domestic violence and sexual harassment are incompatible with a Christian lifestyle and as such are of concern to the church.

Both domestic violence and harassment are against the law.

Both the victim and alleged perpetrator of these incidents are souls for whom Christ has died and as such should be treated with compassion and in confidence while they are encouraged to address and resolve those issues which affect them.

Although these are complex issues there are many professional agencies in the community and on the internet which can provide specialised ongoing support to affected individuals.

These issues create a great deal of distress for those affected and the support of a friend who can pray with them, keep their confidences and listen to them impartially while they work their way through the necessary processes may be invaluable.

The Pastor or an elder/leader in the church may be referred to for advice and spiritual support and the affected individual may come to a point where they wish to share, perhaps with the help of a friend, their concerns with the leadership as part of their journey towards addressing and resolving the issue.

2.3 Be Fair

Care should be taken not to jump to any conclusions whilst offering prayerful support to those involved. Disclosures of this nature can be complex and at times confusing and so every effort should be made not to prejudice the issue ahead of any investigation or action by external agencies. Likewise even an unguarded comment to a friend has the potential to make matters worse or do unwarranted harm to someone's reputation. Your role is to listen and to encourage the person to refer the issue on rather than to investigate or try and manage the situation yourself.

2.4 Refer

There are times when an individual may not wish to address the issue directly but for reasons of their safety or that of another the friend they have confided in may wish to consider referring the incident themselves to the appropriate external authorities.

There are also times when we need to recognise that we do not have all of the necessary skills or resources to help another and that our service to them may be that of a friend who encourages them, prays with them and/or helps them find those who do have the skills, resources or authority to provide practical help.

Church membership is a privilege that demonstrates that an individual is committed to living in accordance with the beliefs of the church. One such belief is the respectful treatment of others. Where it is proven that a member, regardless of office, is rejecting this belief through their ill treatment of others the matter should be referred to the local church board or Pastor for action. To bear the name "Christian" is to profess that we seek to follow Him who died for us and as such local churches should ensure that through the programmes of the church members are made aware of the church's beliefs in this area.
